VOLUME XXI.

"Thirty years ago there was issued from the press of "Lane, Canfield & Co, Howard street," a primer-like volume of 124 pages, bearing the following title "Hall's General Directory and Business Guide of the City of Akron for 1868-69," and in the "Preface" the publisher said, "We fear many of our patrons will not duly appreciate the amount of labor and care incident to the preparation and publication of a City Directory, and especially in a city like Akron, whose growth has been such as to annually outgrow its previously prescribed limits—making new streets unnamed and multitudes of houses unnumbered, which greatly increases the labors and difficulties of canvassing. In many instances it has been almost impossible to locate such houses intelligibly. Notwithstanding the great difficulties we trust we have been enabled to present a work which will be not only creditably accurate, but meet the entire satisfaction of our patrons."

If the publisher of Akron's first Directory could see the present volume of 768 pages, what would be his estimate of the "labor and care incident to its preparation?"

This issue contains the names of twenty thousand three hundred and nine (20,309) individuals carefully counted, not estimated (These figures do not include the wives' names in brackets) At the usual ratio of two and one-half to one name we have, June, 1898, a population of fifty thousand seven hundred and seventy-three (50,773)

The following table shows the number of names occurring in each letter

WHY do people praise the XXth Century Furnace? Because it is the only furnace manufactured in Akron built especially to do away with the objections to all other soft coal furnaces. It was built at a time when we knew from experience what construction would be necessary to beat all competition. Come in and see the "World Center."

Black & Gormer, of Erie, Pa., after forty years' experience in the stove and furnace business, come to us for permission to use our patents in "Oak" Stoves. They knew they must have XXth Century construction to sell their goods. The XXth Century has a remarkable record and cannot be appreciated without examination. Call and see it.
